I am preparing an exhibit of United States coins for display in the lobby of Crocker National Bank, 300 Mission St., San Francisco, CA 94105. The exhibit is titled "Forgotten Coins of America's Past" and features examples and histories of such curious items as the Pine Tree Shilling and the Twenty Cent Piece. Coins of this sort seem to have the greatest appeal to persons who know little of numismatics. Accompanying the exhibit will be the poster for National Coin Week 1983. The bank's officers were a bit apprehensive at first, but they agreed to the exhibit after receiving a legal clearance from their headquarters. The display will be standing from Monday morning through Friday afternoon.
